

TRIP TO CANOSSAVILLE CHILDREN'S HOME!

Christmas is a time of warm fuzzy feelings and gatherings with loved ones. It is also an opportune reminder for us to look around us, forget about ourselves, and spread the Yuletide joy.

A group of us headed down to Canossaville Children's Home, a home offering residential care, emotional and psychological support to girls aged 6-12 years who come from challenging family situations which may put them at risk. I personally was very taken by their vision - to build happy, confident and resilient children who are creatively other-centred.

Before the girls were brought into the hall, we were briefed by the Children's Home worker on things to be mindful of in our interactions with the girls. Thereafter, we split into different groups to man respective Christmas game stations. There were games involving sand art, basketball, crossword puzzles, hoop-tossing, among others!
